Specializing in teaching kids and teens to sew

COVID-19 Safety Practices

March 1, 2021

Welcome to Bumblebunch Sewing Studio!

During this time of COVID-19, we all understand that staying flexible and keeping informed is helpful.

Bumblebunch Sewing Studio will comply with the safety guidelines issued for our business category. These practices will include:

- Parents agree to check their child's temperature and not bring the student to class with a temperature above what is normal for the student. A refund will be issued for the missing class time.
- Parents agree that if their student was exposed to an infected person or tests positive, they will not return to class for at least 10 days AND be fever-free for at least 24 hours. A refund will be issued for the missing class time.
- The student's temperature will be taken upon entering the studio.
- 6' distance between all individuals during class time. The exception to social distancing is for siblings that live in the same home.
- Individual workstations have been created for each student and all of the supplies and surfaces at the workstations will be disinfected before every class. Any shared tools will be disinfected before handing them to the student.
- Wearing a face covering by all students and instructors is required.
- Frequent hand washing with soap will be required for students and instructors. There is also hand sanitizer available.

If a student or instructor is exposed to Covid-19 while in the studio, we will communicate directly with all parents of exposed students, report it to the county health department, and temporarily close the studio for a minimum of 10 days.

- Students can bring a bottle of water to keep with them at their workstations. No snacks.
- For additional safety, parents are to drop off and pick up their students in the hallway and not enter the studio.
